

ASX ANNOUNCEMENT

21 January 2022

VIRTUS HEALTH LIMITED (ASX: VRT)

RESTRICTIONS ON IVF PROCEDURES LIFTED IN VICTORIA ON 20 JANUARY 2022

Further to Virtus Health's ASX Announcement on 14 January 2022 detailing the restrictions placed on IVF procedures by the Victorian State Government, this morning the Victorian Government announced that IVF procedures can restart in Victoria from today.

Virtus Health welcomes yesterday's announcement and is grateful that the Victorian Government has acted, listening to the many people impacted by the suspension of IVF procedures in Victoria.

Kate Munnings, Virtus Health CEO said: "This is tremendous news for women and couples across Victoria who need access to time-critical IVF procedures in order to have a baby."

"We thank our patients for their support, particularly as the restrictions in IVF procedures in Victoria has been so distressing for so many. The support from patients, our staff and the community in highlighting the importance of providing continuous access to fertility services has been remarkable."

Melbourne IVF (part of Virtus Health) was prepared for the resumption of procedures and staff have already commenced contacting patients to resume their treatment.

Over the past few weeks, Melbourne IVF's clinics remained open, providing care for patients via fertility specialist video consultations, providing counselling services as well as providing other fertility treatments such as IUIs, frozen embryo transfers and stimulated cycles commenced prior to 6 January 2022 in accordance with the Health Order.

All IVF treatments and other procedures across Virtus in NSW, Queensland and internationally are not currently impacted by elective surgery restrictions.

This announcement is authorised by the board of directors of the company.
